Oh my goodness!
That's because keeping birds and fish
is not what you need.

Let's think together:
What can we do to save our Mother Earth?

We can save water to protect the Earth.

We can save energy to protect the Earth.

We can reduce air pollution to protect the Earth.

We can take the public transportation to protect the Earth.

We can reuse paper to protect the Earth.
